

Prof. Michael Kamm is Professor of Gastroenterology at St Vincent's Hospital and the University of Melbourne, Melbourne, Australia and at Imperial College, in London, UK. His main interests are in inflammatory bowel disease, gut physiology, and functional gut and pelvic floor disorders. He spends half his time in clinical practice and half in research and teaching. He is the author of over 400 scientific papers and 6 books on inflammatory bowel disease and functional disorders. He is on the Editorial Board of several international gastroenterological journals.